Local School Wellness Policy

To help combat childhood obesity and improve children's health, the Child Nutrition and WIC Reauthorization Act of 2004 (PL # 108-265) required each local educational agency that receives funding for U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Child Nutrition Programs to establish a Local School Wellness Policy (LWP) by the beginning of 2006-2007 school year. The Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 (PL #111-296) expanded the requirements to bring in additional stakeholders to periodically assess and ensure the compliance and progress of the LWP.

With this new requirement, the U.S. Congress recognizes that schools play a critical role in creating a healthy environment for the prevention of childhood obesity and for combating other obesity-related diseases, like Type 2 diabetes, which are linked to poor nutrition and physical inactivity. The Healthy, Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010 places the responsibility of implementing and evaluating a school wellness policy at the local level, so the individual needs of each school can be addressed most effectively.

The following minimum requirements are established by the federal legislation. Schools may choose to include additional features or to integrate a school wellness policy with other ongoing programs. The legislation requires:

- Goals for nutrition education, physical activity, and other school-based activities that are designed to promote student wellness in a manner that the local education agency determines as appropriate;
- Nutrition guidelines selected by the local educational agency for all foods available on each school campus under the local educational agency during the school day with the objectives of promoting student health and reducing childhood obesity;
- Assurances that guidelines for reimbursable school meals are not less restrictive than the regulations issued by the USDA;
- Ways of measuring how well the local school wellness policy is being implemented, including designation of one or more persons at each school with operational responsibility for ensuring that the school is meeting its goals;
- Involvement of parents, students, representatives of the school food authority, the school board and school administrators, and the public, in developing, implementing and reviewing the LWP.
- Public updates on the content and implementation of the LWP.

GateWay Early College Wellness Policy

Rationale:

Schools play an important role for providing children a healthy setting and teaching them the importance of lifelong healthy behaviors. The link between nutrition, physical activity, and learning is well documented. Healthy eating and activity patterns are essential for students to achieve their full academic potential, physical and mental growth, and lifelong health and well-being. These patterns are also linked to reduce risk for certain chronic health conditions, like high blood pressure, type 2 diabetes and obesity. Schools share the responsibility to help students learn, establish, and maintain lifelong healthy eating and activity patterns. Staff wellness is also an integral part of a healthy school environment, since these adults can be daily role models for healthy behaviors.

Goal:

All students of GateWay Early College High School (GWECHS) will be provided with the knowledge and skills necessary to choose nutritious food and beneficial physical activity for a lifetime. All staff of GateWay Early College High School will also be encouraged to model and engage students in healthy eating and physical activity as a valuable part of daily life.

To meet this goal, GWECHS adopts this school wellness policy with the following commitments to nutrition, physical activity, comprehensive health education, marketing, and implementation. This policy is designed to effectively utilize school and community resources and to equitably serve the needs and interests of all students and staff, taking into consideration differences in culture.
